commenter_subject: Position Limits Energy Contracts commenter_comments: I am writing to comment on this proposed regulation of position limits on energy ( oil ) commodity ( futures ) contracts. I see this as re regulation rather than regulation. I feel that the Commodities Futures Modernization Act of 2000 set the stage for this rampant speculation. One only has to look at Goldman Sachs giving advice on the future of oil prices while trading futures contracts in there commodities division. These speculators can find something else to gamble on that is not so important to the average American. Thank You
