Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

I have been informed of the proposed reduction to the leverage for forex traders. For those traders who are depending on this market for livelihood, it would greatly reduce the income they can earn, especially those of us who have accounts of limited size. I ask that you give consideration to those people. I know of no problems the current leverage has caused and wonder why this reduction is being considered.

I respectfully ask that this proposed change to the regulations not be done.
