Subject: Alledged manipulation of JP Morgan, do we turn our backs and pretend it isn't happening?

Recently Geithner was sent to China to scold them for the alleged manipulation of the YUAN. How is it that the representatives of the American people go to China to tell them of their evils of manipulation of their Yuan when we have had two - three years of criminal activity in our country that lasted YEARS, (Bernie Madoff) reportedly since 1963 -2007-8, How on God's earth did this happen? Now we have just recently had a meeting with the CFTC at the helm, discussing the alleged manipulation from JP Morgan where a so called whistle blower who would have / could have exposed JP Morgan's shenanigans. The so called whistle blower, a trader from Goldman Sachs, prior to this meeting, emailed a CFTC agent "Eluid Ramirez (several times) with precise information showing how JP Morgan sent out signals understood by Other JP Morgan traders as well as Goldman Sachs traders giving the exact times and dates these manipulative actions would take place. Sadly enough Mr Andrew was not allowed to speak at this meeting which kind of makes things look bad for the CFTC, (almost as if the CFTC was afraid of what Mr. Maguire had to say. In any case, since that meeting, the New York Post has printed the story up in their paper. This does not look good. I ask again, how can Geithner go to China and scold them for an alleged manipulation of their currency when we have a country that allows banks such as JP Morgan and Goldman Sachs participate in illegal activity.... CRIMINAL ACTIVITY..... What will happen when China or any other emerging nation decides they want their silver so all their people can drink purified water, so they can have antibiotics to save lives, so they too can have the silver needed to aid in the little switch we take for granted that turns our lights on and off or the electric car that will be used silver in their batteries so they can last longer and are much durable... and please don't let us forget the fact that silver has been used as money longer than gold.... Many people think that gold is the rare precious metal but as most know, silver is the rarer of the two. The argument is that there is much more silver below ground than gold but that argument has no foundation. I can tell you that just because you have more change in your pocket doe not mean that you have more than I do and my argument is that I threw $500.00 worth of quarters in the lake last week and so I do have more change than you.... That makes about as much sense as the argument that there is much more silver underground than gold.... Right now, in physical possession there is much more gold than silver and until anyone digs up all this underground silver then silver should carry a higher price tag than gold but it can't as long as JP Morgan continues to ell naked short positions...Why would the historical 16-1 ratio between gold and silver now be 63-1 if there is less silver in our world than gold? Can you say JP MORGAN NAKED SHORT POSITIONS.... Our representatives can only artificially prop up the dollar before it falls and with all this manipulation the fall will be greater because as we continue to print those FRNS the hole gets deeper and someday our posterity will have ZERO to look forward to. Yet Geithner, and Obama continue to point a finger at China for manipulation of the Yuan.... Please do the job you took on as the CFTC:

Are these just words that mean nothing? Please follow the words on this plaque. These words are your duty and like the oath I took when I entered the Navy, I followed it. Just as the hundreds of young boys, including my nephew who have died or been shot and maimed never to live a normal life because they followed the oath they were sworn to follow through with (will the CFTC do the same)..... My nephew is 21 years old and he entered Afghanistan when he was twenty. He will never walk again..... Who cares?
