

From: JASON GLAD <jcglad@msn.com>
Sent: Thursday, January 21, 2010 12:32 PM
To: secretary <secretary@CFTC.gov>
Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

I have been trading the Forex for about 1 year now and been able to support my family on the revenue generated. Being self employed / under employed in this market and being disabled combat veteran with a wife and 5 children. This regulation would cut my income by 90%. With limited capital I will not be able to support my family under the current economic conditions. I believe there are many small traders / Investors in this same situation. Thus taking away revenue to inject into the market contributing to the hardship of the average American. With a booming Forex, Retail trading market what is the reasoning for inhibiting further the average American from supporting their families. If the regulation passes it will force thousands like myself into hardship and drive investors away from the market. It will kill the activity of personal investors in this market. If it is your goal to take the small guy out of this market then this regulation will do this. This terrible proposal will hurt thousands and thousands of Americans. Not investors but all those retailers that investors spend their profits with. I can't believe that I spent 1-1/2 years in Iraq, got blown up, torn up and disabled for a country that instead of a promise / opportunity for a better life wants to regulate that dream away. If you pass this regulation you will fail the American people and for what gain?

Jason Dean
801-699-8244
Riverton, Utah
SFC United States Army