Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex baloney

To whom it may concern,
I urge you in the strongest possible terms not to enact rules which severely hurt the retail Forex investor by limiting our margin to 10:1 instead of the current 100:1. I make a large portion of my income through retail forex and the proposed rule changes in RIN 3038-AC61 would only hurt people like me. I don't see how any further rule changes are necessary since the change to 100:1 maximum margin was just enacted. That should be enough to curb any issues or problems with excess margin being thrown around by retail brokers as a way to suck more money out of retail traders. This kind of rule proposal is exactly the kind of thinking that will lead to the collapse of our capitalist system. I resent being told that I am not mature or responsible enough to decide what is an appropriate risk level for me. I certainly do not think it is the government's job to tell me this!

Sincerely,

J. Trent Eyring
