

From: James M. Ray <jray@martincam.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 3, 2010 10:14 AM
To: Chris Ferrell <chris@rianse.com>
Cc: Metals Hearing <metalshearing@CFTC.gov>
Subject: Re:

Chris Ferrell wrote:

> James
>
> Apparently the CFTC doesn't even recognize that Maguire testified
>
> [http://www.cftc.gov:8765/query.html?
qt=Andrew+Maguire&btnG=Search+Press+Releases&rf=1&st=1&col=pressrel&style=newsite](http://www.cftc.gov:8765/query.html?qt=Andrew+Maguire&btnG=Search+Press+Releases&rf=1&st=1&col=pressrel&style=newsite)
>
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>

Hi Chris.

Well, recall they did NOT let him on the testify list, which pissed him off and caused him to release the emails to us, but he somehow (they fucked up and/or Chilton had a say in the issue...) WAS allowed to be in there to "assist" someone else (who didn't know nearly as much, of course) but who was, for some damn reason, testifying instead of the actual whistleblower. Moral: Don't piss Andrew off.
JMR

PS I decided to CC the CFTC email for comments on this, if only for comedy. I suspect the lesson they'll take is "we need to be even MORE closed & secretive, like the SEC was with Markopolos!" Hope ya don't mind. :)

"The budget should be balanced, the treasury should be refilled, public debt should be reduced, the arrogance of officialdom should be tempered and controlled, and the assistance to foreign lands should be curtailed lest Rome become bankrupt." Cicero, circa 63 B.C.

Regards, James M. Ray