Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

To who ever is reading this

If you decide to impose the regulations are they are currently being proposed you are going to seriously put both your Forex traders and their brokerages at a disadvantage to much of the rest of the world. Basically if you impose this regulation I will be moving my account to Australia where I will be able to get an account with 100/1 leverage. This model has worked for years. The individuals that this has caused problems for are people who don't know what they are doing and the brokerages protect them by issuing margin calls.

Individuals in congress do not trade Forex and do not understand what they are proposing.

Please re-think this policy and come up with something better.

Thank You
