Dear Sir,

How is the CFTC's willingness to allow 2 large investment banks to speculate and manipulate the markets in gold & silver commodities not a violation of the public's trust? Why should today's investment banks be allowed to speculate to such extreme levels?

Please consider imposing reasonable position limits on the gold and silver futures market (1500 contracts on silver) so the free market can set reasonable market prices for these metals.

Thank you for your willingness to listen to an 80 year old retired citizen on social security who has been counting on a fair price for my small silver holdings.

Sincerely,
Roger Sandstrom
