Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

To CTFC:

I am an account holder at MB Trading Futures, and I trade the Forex market for personal gain. MB Trading recommended that I write the CTFC in regards to the reduction of Forex leverage from 100:1 to 10:1. While I'm fine with having more regulation of the market, it would be devastating to me and others like me to have to essentially have to take a 90% reduction in profits from Forex trading due to the reduced leverage. This will more then likely move liquidity away from the Forex market, as well has have Forex traders move funds over seas in order to retain the 100:1 leverage.

The Forex market is a huge opportunity for individual investors to grow there portfolio quickly, and the reduced leverage would essentially eliminate that opportunity.
