commenter_comments: I cannot imagine what the leadership at the CFTC must be thinking. I have a difficult time believing that they are at all.

Set against the backdrop of Healthcare legislation that was rammed down the throats of the populus, and preceded by new regulations regarding forex trading that was diametrically opposed to 99.9% of the comments received, this is simply insult to injury.

The notion that MORE government intrusion into privacy as a solution to anything at this point leads me to suspect the nature of the actual question.

I know this may be a radical proposal but -- how about focusing on illegal and unethical practices in the industry (think 'Madoff' -- you might have heard of him) and as it relates to the garden variety honest, hardworking, taxpaying trader -- GET THE HECK OUT OF OUR WAY.

Americans will not tolerate being mothered-about "for our own good". Ultimately, common sense and freedom will prevail.
