Hello,

I'm an active trader in Forex and i solely depend on Forex trading as a means of support since i was laid off, and having difficulty with finding a job. With a regulation on Leverage, I'm completely cut off to trading, i don't see the necessity of this regulation. I feel like it should be a traders right to choose what leverage they desire considering that its their money at stake, and if they loose i don't see how that affect anyone else. I've spent a lot of time learning forex trading and it has been very helpful in making ends meet and allowing me to be able to feed my family.

Thank you
