

From: Tywayne D. Shivers <tywayne.shivers@fedex.com>
Sent: Friday, January 22, 2010 3:35 PM
To: secretary <secretary@CFTC.gov>
Subject: 10 TO 1 regulatory changes

---

Hello,

My name is Wayne shivers and I am a part-time trader. Currently my wife is unemployed and the Forex is my only means of extra money. I feel that the market is now designed for not only the rich, but the working man. By reducing the leverage amount, you will cut out the working man. Most of us do not have as much disposable income as the rich. OF course, I do not trade with money that I cannot afford to lose, but the current leverage system does at least allow me to trade like the big guys and make a decent profit.

My goals at this time are meager, but with the new leverage system, I will have to have at least 10, 000 in the account to trade. This may seem like a good system right now, but in the long run you will deter a lot of global potential customers entering this market. Please listen to the voice of the people. There is not much to hope in these days and we need to live too. It is my dream to become a millionaire via Forex. But what chance do I have if I have to already be rich to trade with the leverage you are proposing??

Sincerely,
FX Part Time Trader
Future Full-time trader

Tywayne Shivers
Sr. BusinessSystems Analyst
FedEx Global Scanning Solutions
Express Business Systems
(901)434-2718