wow 10 to 1 from 100 to 1 from 400 to 1 margin.

it seems too offensive if not extreme to retail forex account holders and future holders. somehow it reminds me of North Korea which is an extreme communist country that just changed currency with very low lifetime exchangeable limits to new currency from the old without much safety to its people to squeeze out money from developing free economy.

mm, are you trying to tell retail forex account holders that do extra research and open a new account in a foreign soil that provide much greater margin rate and even complicate tax situation for them? are you try to over regulate to dry-up the forex sector like a cracking soil in Africa?
