mr.secretary,
i am disbelief to this new propose regulations.although i did not live in the great america,this rules will shape the future of fx.the sound understanding of how leverage works will help trading activities.your gov. should stress more on proper education to equip traders with skills to help them understand the risk in investing.by taking this measure it's only will shy away new investors using US based brokers.i often advise my clients to open an account with US brokers.all because i think nfa and cftc provide reliability to US brokers.this rules shows that cftc did not trust brokers in their home backyard.it's painting black image to investing business.my analogy is simple if it ain't broke fix it.in this case its the US brokers. don't burn the house,and think all problems are solved.
