

From: Fahd Khan <fahdsk87@hotmail.com>
Sent: Saturday, January 23, 2010 4:40 AM
To: secretary <secretary@CFTC.gov>
Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex : Outrageous!!!

RIN 3038-AC61

Dear Sir,

The proposed regulations for retail forex are outrageous. As a forex trader, I feel that it will have detrimental consequences for all the traders involved with forex trading in USA.

We are all grown-ups and very well know our boundaries and limitations and if somebody decides to cross it, well than its his or her own personal choice. We live in a free world and get to choose whatever we find suitable for our growth. Lowering the leverage to 1:10 on the pretext of giving security to our funds is unjustified.

If somebody wants to commit suicide with his funds, well its his choice. We all take risks everyday and own our decisions since we find them necessary to attain certain goals. Crossing a road can be risky too but this does not mean that the Transportation Secretary should ban all the cars!!!

I hope that you will withdraw these outrageous terms and respect the personal decisions and judgment of others.
Thank you

A concerned forex trader

Windows Live: Keep your friends up to date with what you do online.