Sir,

I really think that it is a mistake to change again the rules for leverage in the US , what will occur is people are going to open accounts outside of the US and will continue trading as they really want to do , I personally changed my account from NY to London last summer as I like to trade with a leverage 1:200 and I do the same thing for my customers as I am introducing broker of Forex.com ; I think if there is again a new regulation that will kill the industry of Forex in the US.....

Best Regards
