As a casualty of the financial situation I found myself without a job in early 2009. I have spent the last year doing everything I can to become self sufficient and live the american dream becoming an independent business learning to trade on the Forex market.

Imposing this regulation will all but force me back into the swollen masses of unemployed, thereby undoing everything this country has worked to turn around in the last year.

Please consider this scenario, as I know I am not an isolated case.

Regards,

Mark
