I strongly oppose a ruling that would force me to substantially increase my trading account to enjoy the same leverage I now have. It has been a life saver for me in this dismal economy to have high leverage with a small account and realize comfortable earnings because of the high leverage. A ruling that takes that away would make it too risky to trade and create another hardship. Only the very wealthy would be able to afford to trade the Forex market. I would like to see the United States remain a land of opportunity where people of small means, like me, still have the chance to survive and prosper through trading a small account. A ruling that would destroy the leverage I now enjoy would bring a difficult hardship to me and others like me. Please take this under consideration in your decision for the new ruling.

Thank you,
Bohdon Hejzler
