Hi,
CFTC has done great things for retail trading and to protect investors, but with all due respect, please don't be more papist than the Pope. Investors are well aware of the risk involved with leverage, and whoever loses money trading with is accountable for it.

If leverage is so significantly reduced, small investors will start to vanish, and what today is an accessible market for anyone, will cease to be.

Please hear our voices and don't over-regulate.

Best regards,
Daniel from Costa Rica
