Subject: Curent CFTC proposed limit of 10 to 1 for FOREX trading

Ladies, Gentlemen:

I am infomed that the CFTC is currently considering limiting leverage offered by NFA registered brokers to a limit of 10 to 1. As a small FOREX trader, this limitation will mean an unfair discrimination in my ability to improve my limited retirement income to offset the predictable need in what is assuredly an inflation spiral. Why should traders with, say, $100,000 risk assets available have such considerable advantage over me? I am conservatively doing well with the 100 to 1 leverage my broker now affords me. Please do not take away or diminish my ability to supplement my limited retirement income.

Your serious consideration of this, my plea, for fairness in trading will be most appreciated.

Respectfully submitted,

Roy T. Huffman
