

From: bandktradingco@ct.metrocast.net
Sent: Monday, January 25, 2010 4:22 PM
To: secretary <secretary@CFTC.gov>
Subject: Public Comment Form

---

Below is the result of your feedback form. It was submitted by (bandktradingco@ct.metrocast.net) on Monday, January 25, 2010 at 16:22:00

-----

commenter_subject: Regulation of Retail Forex commenter_comments: The current proposal from the CFTC on the regulation of retail forex that would raise leverage from 100:1 to 10:1 should be rejected and defeated! Such a proposal would devastate the small retail investor like myself who properly manages his account to avoid large draw downs in equity.

This proposal would result in many investors being thrown out of the market all together and would see others needlessly risking capital to meet these ridiculous requirements.

Brokers already limit the trade/point size that can be opened based on an individual's account equity.
Traders of any size need to practice responsibility and discipline on knowing how much to risk and be educated on stop placement. But if they are not, this is their issue to deal with-not the rest of us! It is insulting and unnecessary to punish the millions of other responsible traders who do practice good money management!

REJECT THIS PROPOSAL!

commenter_name: Brian Gosper commenter_withhold_address_on: ON commenter_address1: 64 Picabo St commenter_city: Danielson commenter_state: CT

commenter_zip: 06239

commenter_phone: 860-933-8010

-----