Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

We currently work with a US based Forex broker and we feel very secured with this arrangement. However, with the proposed changes in leverage we would have to reconsider our current arrangements and look for a broker in a country that allows better leverage.

As small investors trying to build-up some equity for retirement in a near future the current leverage is important to us as well as many of our friends currently involved in FOREX trading at our level.

We trust you will reconsider this proposed legislation to preserve our investment options and keep us dealing with institutions we trust in America.

Sincerely,

André & Lyette Dagenais
