Subject: Regulation Of Retail Forex

Dear David Stawick,

(Identification Number Rin 3038-AC61)

My name is Julio Mota and I am a Forex trader who disagree with the new proposal that will limit the leverage to 1:10 for all Forex traders in the U.S. I think that it will affect tremendously to those Forex traders like me who have a small account. I think that this is a country of freedom and for that reason every investor or trader should have the freedom to select what leverage to use. I have an account with 1:500 leverage and for me this leverage is the best. it give me the opportunity to have the freedom trading the way I want. I think that if you want to bring back investor or trader to the stock Market it is not the correct way to do it(affecting the Forex trader).

Thanks in advance:
Julio Mota
