Dear Sir/Madam,

I am a currency trader and am totally against the CFTC proposal of changing the leverage to 10:1. Having a small trading account I already have problems competing with big institution traders trying to take my money away from me. Changing the leverage to 10:1 will add further problems for traders like me where we will not be allowed to make any serious income for ourselves.

The leverage has already been lowered from 400:1 to 100:1. Please don't lower it further, also please think of the "little guy's" survival. Any experienced trader will not abuse the 100:1 leverage but will use common sense and sound money management strategies.

Kind Regards,
Kairas Sethna
