Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

RE: RIN 3038-AC61

Dear Mr. Stawick

Although I am a Democrat and certainly in favor of increased intelligent regulation of both the banks and other large financial institutions, the proposed changes in leverage for forex trading affect those of us that are individuals trading on our own account. I feel very strongly that this kind of constraint on individual traders is an unnecessary infringement upon our individual rights and will do nothing to significantly reform the activities of the mammoth institutions you need to be focused on regulating. I will be following this issue closely and in touch with my legal representatives about it. Please do not move forward with implementation of this policy as currently drafted.

Kind Regards,

David Mims
