Subject: Strongly disagree to change current leverage % to 10:1

Dear Sir:

As many investors, I strongly disagree to change current leverage % to 10:1 because I have no more extra money to keep my current position once you decide to change it from 100:1 to 10:1. The change you are going to make is so huge, and it must be a mistake, it will cause many investors who just like me lose our money what we have saved from our hard living. beside, compare with other surround country's condition, I believe all the new & existing FX players will start thinking to transfer their money to the FX trading company outside of the States.

If your purpose for doing this is to limit the financial risk of the country, how about to make a law & stopping all the FX trading activities in the States instead suffer us investors?

Best regards,

Defoliate
