Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

I recently married and move to Texas and now cannot find a job in my field due to the economy. My husband and I are approaching retirement age, his business is in trouble, and we are counting on forex as a new source of income. Please leave in plade the current 1:100 leverage for small traders such as myself and many many others, some of who have invested heavily in training and count on this as an additional source of income. Thank you.
