Regulation of Retail Forex

Dear Secretary,

I am a small Forex Trader and Do not agree with the new proposed regulation that would increase the amount of money in margin , thus making it tougher for the small trader and making it much harder on the firms in the United States and giving the advantage to firms that are in other countries, Do you really think this will effect any of the bigger private traders ????? No they will use a firm located somewhere other than the U.S. -----This will do nothing but disadvantage people like me and cause losses of the firms in the us that service retail traders. I understand all of the new proposed Red Tape in Banking and Finance industry in lew of the Recession, but some of the new more strengent proposed regulations are not good in the long run for us.

Thank You,

Dr. Burton Berger D.C.
