

From: Daniel Felipe Cañas Aguirre <dfcanas@gmail.com>
Sent: Friday, January 29, 2010 9:21 AM
To: secretary <secretary@CFTC.gov>
Cc: admin@campodetrading.com
Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

---

My name is Daniel Cañas, I am a retail forex trader outside the United States and my broker firm is regulated by the NFA in the your Country. Its been very hard to believe that you are trying to change leverage regulkation even in my particular case that here in Colombia several thousands of traders work and live as a traders in as 100% of their income.

Now if the cftc changes leverage regulations most of us will have to look for another job (cleaning houses, taxi driver, gym trainer, etc) or who knows. The only true is that we will no longer have a way to live and work as we love, trading.

Also if in my country like I said thousands of traders have their money in brokers registered and regulate in the United States, I believe that other countrys have the same or more money in your country. So you can imagine how much money this brokers have on their accounts and how much taxes they pay and how many jobs they are generating.

So my opinion is that changing leverage regulations instead of a good idea is an idea that doesn't benefit the U.S economy.

Thank you for your attention,

Daniel Cañas
Retail Forex Trader at campodetrading.com

instead of a good idea is an idea that does not benefit the U.S.
economy