Subject: Regulation of Forex Retail

I am a new retail forex trader. Changing the leverage requirements is not in the best interest of retail traders or the American economy. 1) we don't need babysitters to control our behavior, 2) any trader who is currently earning a living off retail trading is NOT living off the government and taxing the resources of fellow citizens, 3) any knowledgeable trader will move their accounts to off-shore brokerages...then we all lose.

My email is to ask to not change the current leverage ratios.
