

From: Russ Ring <rring@frontiernet.net>
Sent: Monday, March 8, 2010 4:03 PM
To: secretary <secretary@CFTC.gov>
Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

Leave it to the CFTC to mess things up.

I have no idea what purpose the above regulations would serve. To limit the margin requirements seems so petty on your part!

Why don't you simple come out and say we don't want Retail Forex Trading. That would make your Banks happy..... Instead you have to play these little games to force everyone out. At least there will be limited PC, and you can proudly say we are just trying to protect you, which you already know is crap. Do you even understand Forex?

I am sure you are bending over backwards for the Banking Industry. Heaven forbid anyone makes a couple of dollars without the Banks getting all twisted out of shape.

It's not bad enough that the US Government has to control every little thing we do. Now agencies like yours needs to break us too!!!

It is just plain disgusting and you should be ashamed of yourselves. What am I thinking, you being ashamed, please!!!

A retail Forex Trader.