

From: kneiman1@aol.com
Sent: Monday, March 8, 2010 6:57 PM
To: secretary <secretary@CFTC.gov> Subject: Public Comment Form

Below is the result of your feedback form. It was submitted by (kneiman1@aol.com) on Monday, March 08, 2010 at 18:57:02 commenter_subject: Regulation of Retail Forex commenter_comments: I am a senior citizen. I trade Forex. I am on a fixed income and have limited resources. I trade responsibly. Why are you going to force me to move my trading account offshore? Is it because you want to be my "big brother"? Who are you trying to protect by changing the margine requirements? Is it that you are bending to the will of the banks and institutions who would prefere that small investors would not have access to the Forex market? Are you trying to protect small investors that won't take the time to learn how to trade responsibly? Rest assured, you will not be helping me. In fact, you will probably be harming me by forcing me to move my account offshore where I may have less control over it. The brokers make substantial dollars from the Forex market. Don't you think that it would better if the taxes paid on brokers profits were paid to the United States? Of course, down the road, I am sure that some commission or other will decide to put another restriction on us, so that we will have to pay for trading offshore. Please do not change the margin requirements for trading Forex.

commenter_name: Kenneth Neiman commenter_withhold_address_on: ON commenter_address1: 2521 Lotus Hill Dr commenter_city: Las Vegas commenter_state: NV

commenter_zip: 89134

commenter_fax: 702-445-7232 commenter_phone: 702-445-7232
