I am against this new proposal it will definitely hammer retail investor as it is the secondary source of income for most of the retail traders who can't afford large capital to trade.
STOP this, keep up what is going on at present, no new rules please For me forex trading is a systematic speculation and such things are of no use, only a forex trader can understand the effect of this, if you are a forex trader then I don't need to explain the consequences of the same
