Subject: CFTC planned rules change for the Forex market

To whom it may concern,

I am a very small investor who has been studying this market for some 8 months or so.

I am ready to apply my trading method but the too strict rule changes planned, concerning the requirements for dealing mini Forex units, would prevent me from acting and realizing my objectives in getting some financial freedom from investing in this market.

I am sure there many many investors out there in my "conditions" and we all would be devastated by those planned "severe" rule changes.

I ask, and am sure others would agree, that the CFTC reconsider the changes.

Regards,

Claude Belanger
