Subject: Regulation of Retail Forex

I wish to express my opposition to the proposed changes to be brought about by RIN 3038-AC61. This sounds extremely unfair to the average Forex trader and one that would drive most from the market. I strongly suspect that it is another effort by our government's far reaching tentacles to control another segment of the American life. It equates to being an attempt, however subtle, to silence "Talk Radio"! I do not know of any instance where a Forex trader has brought down a major banking concern nor have they caused a destabilization of the financial markets. The big banks, insurance companies, real estate businesses, et al, are the real market movers and not the average trader. Change in the leverage requirements will drive out the individual traders. Seems like big business and big government are at it again.

Sincerely,

Donald M. Wyrick
