Re: RIN 3038-AC61

Dear Mr. Stawick,

I am fully against any decision to lower the leverage to 10:1 versus what it is at now at 100:1. There is no reason at all to lower the leverage. The CFTC would completely harm many traders' income to make a living not only with decrease in leverage but also margin requirements. We know the risks of leverage or else we wouldn't trade the forex to begin with. The government does not need to interfere with the livelihood of traders in this case.

With the economy the way it is, trading the forex has only been a benefit to make a living. Please do not let the government interfere with traders ability to make a living trading the forex.

Sincerely,

Gerry Simoni
